

Ideas Sought from Students on Civic Woes

Janaagraha's I Change My City, a hyper local social change network, has invited students from class VII to XII to suggest ideas on civic problems that cripple the cities, thereby adversely impacting quality of life. Students can participate in this project either individually or by forming a group of five students from their school or neighbourhood.